The feature picture at the Comique to-day, Brothers in Arms. Frankly, it excels anything ever presented in Barre before. The story of the picture is a simple one. It is that of two friends who parted after one of them had made a successful appeal to the heart of a girl whom they both loved. They pass through some very stirring war experiences. When looking on these scenes wherein all the glory, all the excitement, and all the horror of real war are graphically shown, one feels as if one was looking at an actual conflict. This picture dramatically is the most excellent we have witnessed for some time.
